ABC is coming to Wesleyan School to film a fundraising event for Tanner's Totes. Ethan Zohn, winner of Survivor: Africa and host of ABC's new show entitled "Everyday Health Heroes" will be participating and accompanied by Jenna Morasca, winner of Survivor: The Amazon. NBA legends Mark Price and Gerald Wilkins, along with future NBA stars Trey Thompkins and Gani Lawal, will be showcased at the event to help raise awareness and funds for Tanner's Totes. Tanner's IRS approved non-profit company was nominated, reviewed, and chosen by ABC to be featured in this new TV show. At the age of 12, Tanner Smith, a Wesleyan '08 graduate, started his company in an effort to help cheer preteens and teens who are undergoing long term hospital stays. Tote bags, full of fun-filled new items, are given to these patients on those long, blue days. Deliveries began with the Children's hospitals here in Atlanta, and now the totes are shipped and delivered to hospitals across the nation, including Hawaii. Tanner is now a senior co-captain of the Clemson University basketball team where he has continued his Tanner's Totes mission.

The fund raising event at Wesleyan School, filmed by ABC productions for "Everyday Health" to be aired this fall, will feature the celebrities above in basketball skill games as well as other fun crowd participation games, family entertainment and raffle prize! JDew, entertainer from the Greenville Drive (AA baseball team) and Clemson University, will MC the evening. Not only will this be a fun, family event, it's also an opportunity for you to make a difference in a child's life by bringing a donated item from our list of items or a cash contribution. Please go to www.tannerstotes.com for the list of acceptable items.

Let's all come together to show our support for Tanner's Totes and make it a slam dunk!

"It's all about the patients."

-Tanner Smith
